Family Positive Workplace Companies to be Recognized

The Potts Family Foundation will recognize 32 businesses from 7 different locations across the state at the second annual Family Positive Workplace Awards Ceremony 10 a.m. August 7, 2019 at the Central Oklahoma Homebuilders Association, 420 E. Britton Road in Oklahoma City. Presenting the awards will be The Honorable Leslie Osborn, Oklahoma State Labor Commissioner, and Brian Fayak, Founder, President and CEO of Nextep (a 2018 awardee).

The Family Positive Workplace (FPW) is one of the Potts Family Foundation's programs that falls under the OK25by25 Early Childhood Coalition umbrella, which launched in May of 2016. OK25by25's primary demographic is families with children, pre-birth to five, and it's goal is to have Oklahoma be among the top 25 states, by 2025, in key early childhood metrics.

The goal of the awards ceremony is to recognize companies that have implemented, though their internal policies and procedures, family positive policies that better support their employee base. The most common policy examples include flexible leave and work schedules, child care expense assistance, and paid time off for volunteer work.

"The research on the outcomes of employers implementing FPW policies is extensive and quite strong," Craig Knutson, president and CEO of the Foundation, said. "Companies that have family positive workplace policies in place have an easier time in both attracting new employees and retaining existing employees and experience increased productivity, loyalty and improved morale."
